

Who is?

Greta THUNBERG

SKOOLGO

Greta Thunberg is a Swedish environmental activist who rose to international prominence in 2018 for her activism against climate change. At just 15 years old, she began skipping school to protest outside the Swedish Parliament, demanding stronger action on the climate crisis. Her solitary protests quickly gained attention, and she soon became a figurehead for the global youth movement for climate action.

Greta has since addressed world leaders at international summits, including the United Nations General Assembly, and has inspired millions of young people around the world to take action on the climate crisis. She has become a powerful voice for her generation, speaking out against the inactivity of politicians and calling for immediate action to address the most pressing global issue of our time.

In 2019, Greta was named Time magazine's Person of the Year, and she continues to inspire and mobilize people all over the world to demand action on the climate crisis.
